HB/SB 750 Education and Fiscal Responsibility Act

PROBLEM: Illinois' fiscal system is broken.

State revenues cannot meet the cost of existing human services, education, and pension obligations. Even though the state has balanced the budget on paper, reality is that the current revenue system does not keep pace with existing costs, adjusting solely for population growth and inflation over time. This revenue gap or, structural deficit, is reflected every year in the necessity to cut programs, reduce staff, raid other funds, and borrow against the state pensions in order to balance the budget as required by the state constitution. In short, the state is not generating enough revenue to meet existing obligations.

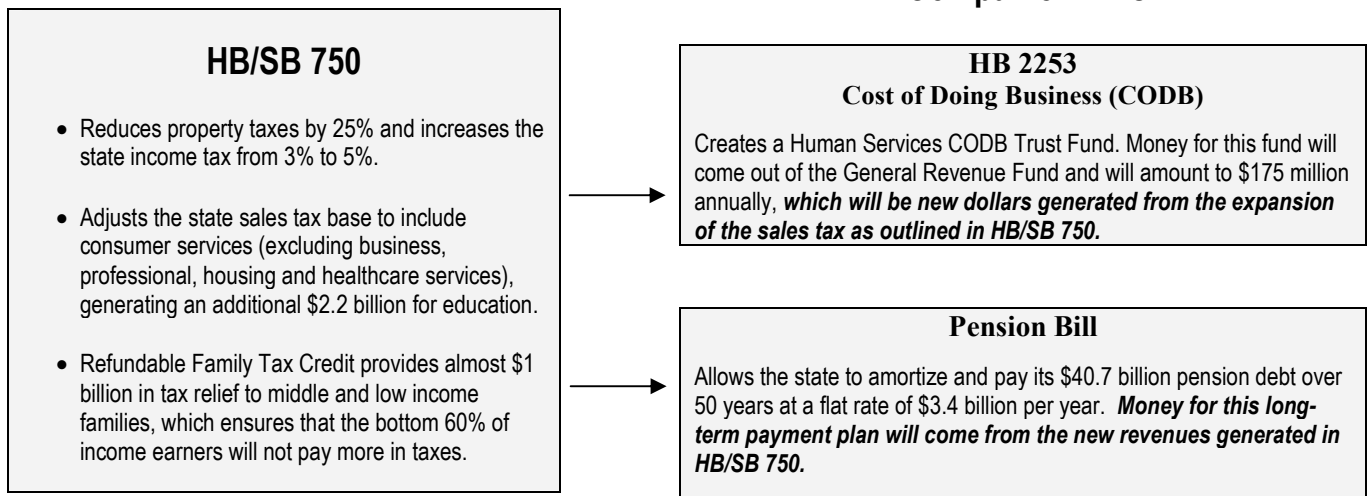

The state's tax system, initially designed in the 1930s, is outdated and does not grow with the modern economy; as a result, Illinois generates less revenue than needed to maintain current public service levels, adequately and fairly fund education, and make the required pension payments from year to year.

SOLUTION: Illinois needs a comprehensive package of fiscal solutions.

- Illinois must close the structural deficit. In 2005, the state's structural deficit reached over $3 billion. In order to regain secure financial footing and fund essential public services into the future, Illinois must close this budget hole.
- Illinois must reform the education funding formula. Illinois has the most unfair school-funding system in the nation, where spending differences per student can be as high as $19,000 between districts. Illinois needs a fair and adequate funding formula that does not over-rely on local property taxpayers to foot the bill for public education costs.
- Illinois must adequately fund human services. Despite the growing demand for public services, spending on human services decreased by $387 million, or 10%, between 2001 and 2004, after adjusting for inflation. Without comprehensive fiscal reform, human services funding will continue to decrease and Illinois working families will suffer.
- Illinois must meet its pension obligations. Illinois has the largest pension debt in the U.S., totaling $40.7 billion. This debt is past the point of fiscal crisis and, unless addressed, will require drastically cutting public services for future generations.

Policymakers can fix the state's broken fiscal system. Illinois must modernize the state tax system in order to raise enough money to pay its bills – this requires a comprehensive package of fiscal solutions.
